

Exquisite Upper Rockridge with Stunning Views

G

6101 Contra Costa Road, Oakland

Large and dramatic Tuscan style home on a cul-de-sac, designed and built by Mark Becker, offers sensational bay views and provides effortless access between the beautiful interior spaces and the outdoors. There are four bedrooms, three and one-half baths, a media and game room, an office, and a 'great room'. Exterior features of this home include front gate with rustic wooden doors, a two-story facade with a fitted stonework entry, a massive hammered oak front door, and a trellis-shaded patio with Tuscan columns. The main level has a spacious grand room, with an open, flowing floor plan. Glass-paneled doors across the rear walls of the living, dining and family rooms open to a sweeping view of San Francisco, Mount Tamalpais, and the Golden Gate Bridge. The enormous eat-in kitchen encompasses a breakfast area, large island work area and the family room. An elegantly curved Art Nouveau style staircase leads to the three bedrooms, laundry room and office. The spacious master bedroom suite has a fireplace, a private balcony, and luxurious bath, all with exquisite views. Downstairs the huge media room can also serve as a combination family room and game room; also on this level there is a bedroom and bath, a private guest suite or au pair. Doors open out from the family room onto a covered tiled patio and the garden.
